Not taking yourself too seriously

When I bought my first smart phone I thought about the 30-year business I ran with 1800 employees, all without a mobile phone that plays music, takes videos, pictures and communicates with Facebook and Twitter. I signed up under duress for Twitter and Facebook so my seven children, their spouses, 13 grandchildren could communicate with me in the modern way. I figured I could handle something as simple as twitter with only 140 characters of space.

It wasn't long before my grandchildren signed me up for lots of other Apps The names of which I forget'Tweeter, tweetree, and something that sends every message to my cere phone and every other program withing the texting world.

My phone was beeping every three minutes with the details of everything except the bowel movements of the entire next generation. I am not ready to live like this. I now keep my phone in the garage in my golf bag.

The children bought me a GPS for my first birthday because they say I get lost every now and then. going over to the library. I keep that in a box under my tool bench.

I mean the GPS loo pretty smart on my dashboard, but the lady inside that gadget was the most annoying, rudest person I had run into in a long time. Every 10 minutes, she would sarcastically say, "'Recalculating". You would.= think she could be nicer. It was as if she could barley tolerate me. She would let go a deep sigh and then tell me to make a U turn at the next light.

When I get really lost now, I call my wife and tell her the name of the cross streets and while she is starting to develop the same tone as the GPS lady, at least she loves me.

To be perfectly frank I am still trying to learn how to use the cordless phones in our house. We have had them for 4 years, but I still haven't figured out how I can loose three phones all at once and have run around digging under chair cushions ana checking bathrooms and the dirty laundry baskets when the phone rings.

The world is getting too complicated for me. I was recently asked if I tweet?. I replied, "No, but I toot a lot"

Supermarket Greeter.

Charlie, a new retiree greeter at the local Supermarket, just couldn't seem to get to work on time. Every day he was 5, 10, 15 minutes late. But he was a good worker, really tidy, clean-shaven, sharp-minded and a real credit to the company and obviously demonstrating their "Older Person Friendly" policies.

One day the boss called him into the office for a talk. "Charlie, I have to tell you, I like your work ethic, you do a fantastic job, but you're being late so often is quite bothersome."

"Yes, I know boss, and I am working on it." "Well good, you are a team player. That's what I like to hear. It's odd though you're coming in late. I know you're retired from the Navy. What did they say if you came in late there?"

"They said, 'Good morning, Admiral'. May I get you some coffee, sir?"
